"JOINT" CUSTODY OF MAD

It took me ending up in county jail with a stiff nine-month sentence to finally start reading MAD again. Not only is it entertaining, I can also trade it for Ramen soups when I'm done. Keep up the good work.

Al Kamykowski
French Camp, CA

Big Al — This is not the first time you will read on the Letters Page our contention that MAD is and remains one of the great prison reads! We hope you beat the rap, but if not, we strongly urge you to visit madmag.com and click "subscription, three years and longer." See you in the showers, honeybuns! —Ed.

Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™

My dumb wish is for you to have "A MAD Look at Osama bin Laden" in an upcoming issue.

Mike Gerber
Quartz Hill, CA

Gerber Baby — Osama bin Laden continues to be a magnet for Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ requests (see Letters Page, MAD #413). But as we've often stated, it is the raison d'être of us at the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ to make dumb wishes come true. It just so happens we have legions of underage writers working double shifts at comedy sweatshops to produce boffo bin Laden articles! Here's but a snippet of an upcoming feature we're calling...

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS

Holy Celebrity Snap! Holy coincidence! Not only is Adam West (the ONLY true Batman) the focus of this month's Celebrity Snap, he's also the writer of the introduction to a brand new MAD book, MAD About Super Heroes, which is on sale now at fine bookstores everywhere. Holy cheap and shameless plug! Regardless, Michael Brusko of Lewisville, TX receives a one-year subscription for his photo of his daughter, Charlie, with the Caped Crusader!

DIVING INTO THE GENE POOL

Issue #413 is full of mistakes, but one of them really stands out. In "Amazing Facts (and Surprising Discoveries) From the Human Genome DNA Project" you said that Watson and Crick looked through a microscope and saw the double helix. Watson and Crick were actually chemists and they dissected DNA. After they had all of the measurements, they could not figure how it fit together. They sent the specifications to a machinist and he figured out that the only way it could fit together was in the shape of a double helix. We must give credit where credit is due.

Jim Dewey
Burton, OH

Jimbo — Why do we get the feeling your head is also in the shape of a double helix? —Ed.

MONROE'S FAN CLUB

It's about time you move those four pages of nose snot (called Monroe) to the back of your magazine. It makes it easy for me to skip the article.

Ken McClelland
Reston, VA

Kenny— Skip the article? Skip a month with America's favorite dysfunctional family? Oh no. In fact, not only will we not honor your request to move Monroe to the back of the magazine, we're taking the liberty of nominating you to be President of the Official Monroe Fan Club. We invite all readers who wish to become charter members of the fan club (for which there are no dues, no privileges and no materials) to send their name and address to Ken "The Reluctant President of the Monroe Fan Club" c/o MAD Magazine, 1700 Broadway, New York, NY 10019!

SUB THY NEIGHBOR

Hi, my name is Erika Holden. I've been reading MAD for two years (I'm 11 years old) and my mom has been reading it for 22 years (she's 30 years old). Anyway, I just wanted to tell you that if MAD wasn't a magazine, then my family would be normal. But thank goodness you are. By the way, you should be happy to know that we are the weirdest family on our block!

Erika Holden
St. Marys, GA

E! — Sorry to hear you are the weirdest family on your block, but fortunately for you, we do have a solution. This Saturday, get up bright and early, begin knocking on all your neighbors' doors and don't leave until you convince each and every one of them to subscribe to MAD. Within a few issues, every one of your neighbors will be just as weird as you. We're glad to help out, and send our love to mom! —Ed.

HOW TO REACH US

Please address Correspondence To:
MAD, Dept. 416, 1700 Broadway,
New York, New York, 10019.

MAD welcomes reader submissions. Manuscripts will not be returned or acknowledged, however, unless they are accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope! MAD doesn't read faxed submissions!

"REMEMBER WHEN YOU COULD WALK DOWN THE STREET WITHOUT SEEING YOUR FRIENDS AND FAMILY SUFFERING FROM THE DARK WINDS OF POVERTY AND DESPAIR?"

THE GOURD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY

UPDATE! In MAD #414 we printed photos from readers who wasted their time carving Alfred's face into their Halloween pumpkins. Like all beautiful things in life, they eventually wind up dead and shriveled, a mere shell of their former self. It is with this cheery thought in mind that we present Great Falls, VA resident Gene Philip's Alfred-E- Lantern the week after. We even think it looks a little like Kathleen Turner. Enjoy!

CEMETERY SNAPS

After a grueling and exhausting search of every cemetery in the city of Appleton, WI, I discovered the perfect shot. Here I am next to the grave of Communist hunter Joseph R. McCarthy. As we took the photo, I could have sworn I heard the sound of Tail Gunner Joe turning over in his grave.

Colin Martin
Appleton, WI

Collie — Mocking the grave of distinguished Red-baiting Senator Joe McCarthy? Sir, at long last, have you left no sense of decency? Look for your one-year subscription in the mail! —Ed.

FROM COVER TO COVER

It appears as if missing MAD cover boy Alfred E. Neuman had no trouble lining up work after the bad economy prompted his absence from the cover of this issue! Our grinning gap-toothed idiot can be found on the cover of the Land's End March catalogue! Take note, Victoria's Secret!

SNAPPY ANSWERS?

Back in MAD #412 we ran "Snappy Answers to Stupid Questions: Special Law Enforcement Edition" in which we foolishly invited readers to send in their own snappy answers to our stupid questions. We even more foolishly promised to print some of the best ones in an upcoming issue. Well, the snappy answers are in and the results are pathetic, but a promise is a promise. Congrats (if that's the right word) to everyone who participated!

THE WORD OF CLOD

In a world filled with hate and evil, I see that MAD is doing its part in spreading your brand of tolerance. "Hate Christians!" That is what I see when I look at pages 15 ("The Controversial Artist Instruction School") and 28 ("The MAD 20: Jerry Falwell Attacks America") in issue #413. As an American and Christian I support the First Amendment protecting freedom of speech. Having said that, your attack on Jerry Falwell, Pat Robertson, The 700 Club and the Bible is protected by the Constitution and should be "tolerated" by all "good little Christians." Right? So then, why doesn't MAD "tolerate" the remarks made by Mr. Falwell and Robertson? Where is their "Freedom of speech"? Why is it not OK for Jerry Falwell to "attack America," but OK for MAD to attack him? Furthermore, I see that your "guided" reading of the Bible has brought you to put it in its "proper place" according to MAD (see page 15) and why does MAD care how Jerry Falwell is spreading the word of Jesus? Since you think or know that he is not, perhaps you and your magazine should take his place. I'm sure you could do a better job. Perhaps you should examine your level of "tolerance" before you judge others.

Robert Ochampaugh
Hollywood, FL

Bobby — It's a shame your letter was written in December, 2001 and not January, 2002, because it would be the perfect candidate to head up "The MAD 20 dumbest people, events and things of 2002"! In fact, we took the liberty of channeling several of our forefathers including Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and George Washington and they all agreed that when they wrote the First Amendment it was not their intention to cover under the guise of free speech moronic drivel such as the letter you sent us. We'll pray for you. —Ed.

Hundreds of thousands of you have visited MADMAG.COM. Under the law, every company that collects personal information must make their "privacy policy" known. Fortunately, that law doesn't say that the "privacy policy" need be easy to understand. So with that nice loophole in mind, here is...

MAD MAGAZINE'S PRIVACY POLICY

Your privacy is important to us. Why? Because by invading your privacy, we might just be able to make a few extra bucks!

We'd like you to believe our privacy policy is just your "everyday, typical" privacy policy that you've seen and read hundreds of times elsewhere, so you'll just skip reading it and move on to something else.

Are you still reading this? Well, one thing we've learned about you already is that you're quite uncooperative! Now PLEASE stop reading this and move on! Why you should care about what we do with the personal information we collect on you, your family and your friends is beyond anything we can comprehend!

THE INFORMATION WE COLLECT

If you've ever visited MADMAG.COM, you know that on our site you can order products, enter contests, vote in polls and express an opinion. You should know that while we value your opinion, what we really value is the information we collect on you and can then sell to other companies over and over again. To the best of our knowledge, this is the only way anyone has ever made money on the internet!

At MADMAG.COM, the data we collect includes: name, address, e-mail address, telephone number, fax number, credit card numbers and information about your interests. If you have a webcam hooked up to your computer, when you're not looking, we may turn it on from our end and take a peek around your room. If we find anything interesting, we may take some photos, but rest assured they are ONLY for our own files. So as not to invade your privacy, we will never tell you when we're doing this.

At times you might submit a person's name and e-mail address to send them an electronic greeting card or a gift. The types of data that may be collected about them include: name, address, e-mail address and telephone number. We will also note their complete lack of taste if they accept a crappy gift from our website. These names are filed under our "easy pickings" category and are targeted for countless future merchandise offers — sometimes 20 to 30 times a day from companies we've sold their name to who have then sold them to still other companies. And so on and so on. They'll never again be able to log on to the internet without hearing the words "You've Got Mail"!

We may also collect certain non-personal information when you visit our web pages, such as the type of browser and the type of operating system you are using. We do not use that information ourselves. We will, however, occasionally, on a daily basis, sell this information to Microsoft or any of the tens of thousands of companies in which Microsoft has a controlling financial interest.

HOW WE USE THE INFORMATION

We sometimes use the information we collect to communicate with you, such as to notify you when you have won one of our contests (very, very rare) or when we offer new merchandise (very, very often)! In addition, we sometimes make changes to our subscriber agreements (very, very often) and notify you about these changes (very, very rare)! It is important to remember that the information we collect provides for an interactive experience. We send you e-mail offers you don't want and you e-mail back, asking us to stop and to remove your name from our e-mail lists. This is about as interactive as you can find anywhere on the web! And the fact that we rarely pay attention to those "remove my name" requests makes it even more interactive, as your follow-up e-mails for us to stop become more and more frequent (and hostile)!

WHO MAY OBTAIN PERSONAL INFORMATION WE COLLECT

Although we take appropriate measures to safeguard against unauthorized disclosures of information, we cannot assure you that our safeguards actually do anything to protect you. However, we do use the words "WARNING! PRIVATE FILES!" somewhere on our database, which should deter most hackers, three years old and younger, from invading your privacy files.

COLLECTION OF INFORMATION BY THIRD-PARTY SITES

Some of our sites contain links to other sites whose information practices may be different than ours. We have no control over information collected by these third parties. However, for your peace of mind, we should state that we have yet to encounter a third-party site with security standards lower than ours!

OUR COMMITMENT TO SECURITY

We have sophisticated electronic safeguards to prevent unauthorized access to your personal data. We use a super-secret security password that no one would think of willy-nilly. As a matter of fact, that is our super-secret password: willy-nilly! Who would ever think of using willy-nilly as a password to get at the trillions of personal facts we have on file in our databases? Probably no one! And for added security, we alternate our willy-nilly password every month with another obscure password: willy-nilly 1.

Feel better about your privacy when it comes to info collected by MAD Magazine and MADMAG.COM now? Just nod your head, we can see you!

It was a time of ill tidings. Good men fell, and great woe and calamity shrouded the realm. And nowhere was the scourge more bleak, or the disaster more vast, than in the land of New Line Cinema! Many disasters at the box office nearly put them in the land of perpetual darkness. Just as there seemed to be no future for New Line or its bottom line, a single shaft of hope pierced the gloom. Nay, not one shaft of light, but THREE! A trilogy of movies sure to entice every fantasy-hungry role player, isolated mouth-breather and embittered loser in the land to make the arduous trek to the cineplex again, and again, and still again! Hopefully the fortunes of New Line would be restored, but only if a wary public did not become...

BO

The

Why did they choose me to play Dodo Gaggings?

Obviously, it wasn't for my talent as an actor! The director needed to find the right person to portray a Slobbit who is 3 feet, 6 inches tall! After they put 2-inch lifts in my shoes, we were in business! You've never seen a lead character like me! I may be the first action-adventure hero in movie history who could get his ass kicked by Harry Potter!

On the other hand, I made my reputation as one of the finest Shakespearean actors and have been nominated for an Academy Award! As Gandoof, I wear a fake beard and silly hat and play the part of a great magician rather convincingly! Watch closely as my credibility as an actor totally disappears before your eyes!

I'm Peppercorn, but some call me Spider! Others call me Longstinks, the Renuzit, Elfdrone or Telemundo! I've got more stupid extra names than P. Diddy and the Wu-Tang Clan combined! What I don't have is a decent shampoo and conditioner!

ARTIST: HERMANN MEJIA
WRITER: DESMOND DEVLIN

As Spam Gangrene, I'm chief tagalong nebbish and sidekick! I'm dim-witted, afraid to talk to girls and an all-around nothing — in other words, I'm this film's target audience! If I wasn't in this movie, I'd be first on line to see it!

We're Pimple and Baggybuns, the two most incompetent Slobbits around! Give either of us half a chance, and we'll stick our foot in our mouths!

Which ain't easy when you're a size 78 Wide!

I'm Billboard Gaggings, oldest living Slobbit! On the outside, I appear to be a friendly, happy-go-lucky fellow! But everybody can see that just beneath the cheery surface, I'm really a twisted, bitter, jealous, desperately unhappy dwarf! Just like Billy Crystal!

As Argon, the immortal Elf princess, people ask me, was it hard finding the inspiration to play a bizarre ancient character who goes on forever? Actually, it came easy to me! My dad is Steven Tyler from Aerosmith!

RED OF THE RINGS

FEEBLE SCHTICK of KA-CHING!

I am Borderline, and I am valiant, strong and brave! I have pledged my life against evil, in hopes that I can return to my homeland, which has been completely burned and destroyed! I said I was valiant, strong and brave... I never said I was smart!

As you can see from my bow, I am the archer Legolamb! My archery skills are unsurpassed! My acting skills? Let's put it this way, I'm so off target I've hit the screen of the next cineplex! Tom Cruise's butt in Vanilla Sky, to be exact!

Behold Aspercreme, the bad guy wizard with a serious wand up his butt! Gandoof never realized that I was on the side of evil! He should have gotten a clue when I pulled a rabbit out of my hat and immediately put it into a blender! I hate Gandoof for his naive faith in goodness, and also because his facial hair is two inches longer than mine! Size does count, even in the wizard world!

I may look like something that got coughed up by a 400-pound cat, but I'm Gimmicki, the angry dwarf! How do I figure in all this confusion? I'm waiting for someone to tell me! I'm not sure if I appear in this segment or either of the next two they filmed!

You're lucky! I know I appear in this episode, but as one of the Dorcs, the allegedly deadly creatures in service of Sorehead's evil desires, we have a higher mortality rate than sitcoms on the WB!

As Galapagos, the all-knowing elf queen, I'm the wisest character of all! And to stand out even more, notice how I'm backlit! Like someone in a feminine hygiene commercial!

Eh! Eh! Me am Golfclub, and me have been driven insane! Not by Ring, by this cockamamie three-hour butt-blistering movie! Look at this splash page! Talk about endless! And it only includes the main characters! Characters? It was easier to keep the dogs straight in 101 Dalmatians!

I'm so glad that you could visit, Gandoof! But are you sure this is just natural Shire vegetation we're smoking?

Of course, of course! Now, pass me another 30 sweetcakes and keep quiet so I can hear the music of this young, hot new band, The Grateful Dead!

I'd like to thank all the little people! HA! I've waited 111 years to use that joke! Anyway, I'm glad you all could come to my birthday party! And I am deeply sorry that the 111 candles on my cake set fire to the winter harvest!

Happy Birthday Billboard

Nyeeehh-yahh-yahhh! Keep the Ring away from me!

Wow! I haven't seen someone that scared of wearing a littlebitty gold ring since Oprah's boyfriend, Stedman!

Like Oprah, the Ring is all-powerful! It warps souls! It destroys minds! It plunges its owners into eternal slavery! YOU keep it, Dodo!

Gee, thanks! With a caring protector like you watching my back, this could be the first one-movie trilogy ever!

Aha! My inner sense tells me that YOU must be Mr. Dodo Gaggings!

Hey, nice catch, Eagle Eye Cherry! Wanna join us? We could really use the sort of keenly-honed skills that can pick out four midgets in a crowd!

A horse is a corpse, of course, of course! And I am the corpse that rides the horse. And with great force and no remorse, we kill those Slobbits dead!

Yowwww! And yet, I don't mind the pain! Finally, I get to play another onscreen emotion besides "looking dumbfounded."

Are you doing one now? I'm having trouble telling the difference!

They're both so beautiful... so round and full...

Though you are hurt and sick, a Slobbit should not speak about the lips of a princess!

Huff, wheeze...I'm not lusting over your lips! I'm looking at those two beauties!

What? You dare to stare at my royal breasts?

No, your knees! Don't forget, I'm three feet tall!

I'm sorry we took the main road and got you caught!

And that we tried to float the raft away, leaving you to get killed!

And how in the bar, we told everybody who you really were!

Not to mention the campfire that we set attracted the horse-men, and you almost died!

That's okay. But would you mind not leaning on my bad shoulder?

See? I told you this little creep holds grudges!

You'd give up your immortality to marry me? What made you decide?

We're about 90 minutes into an eight-hour trilogy, and already it feels like a lifetime! Suddenly "forever" doesn't seem like such a great thing!

We've got to band together to stop Sorehead!

Sorehead is getting more powerful by the minute!

Soon, Sorehead will strike!

Uh...does it strike anyone as strange that the #1 bad guy in this movie isn't actually IN this movie?

Dodo, I want you to have this. It's magic Slobbit chain mail that will protect you from harm!

Nice timing! The only way this gift could matter more to me is if I'd gotten it back in the Shire! You know, like BEFORE I got stabbed?

By hiking across this mountain, we'll sneak into Torpor unobserved!

Yeah, who could EVER spot nine black silhouettes doing two miles an hour against 400 miles of pure white snow? Shrewd!

Listen to this ancient book! It describes the dwarf army's final moments! "The dwarves fought bravely, but were overwhelmed by numbers. The dorcs broke through the dwarf position and entered the chamber. Arghh! I was cut through by a dorc! My blood flowed freely! My heart came to a halt! And then I died - of boredom, as will be the fate of all who continue this endless quest!"

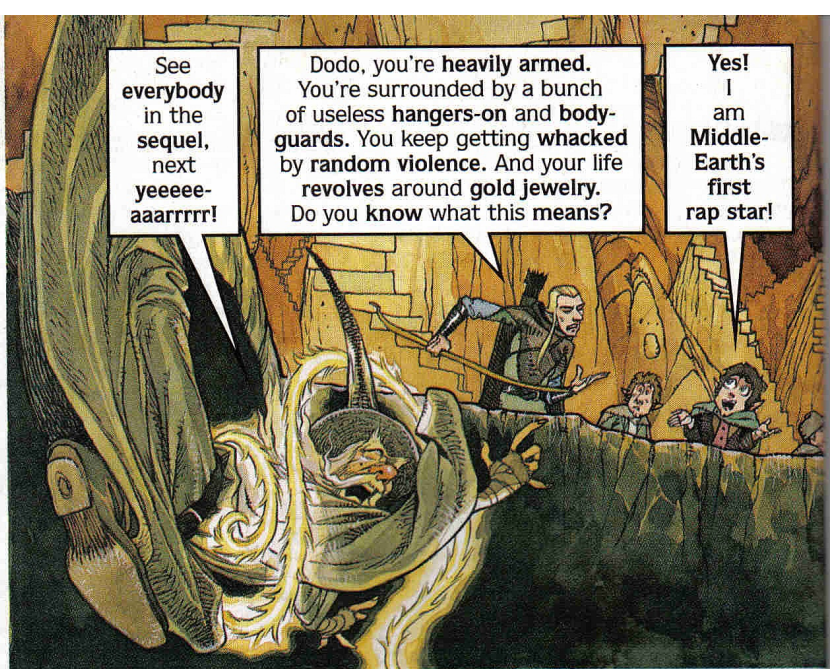

That's so sad, yet powerful!

We killed the stone ogre!

Aye, but here comes another ogre...and he looks a lot tougher!

It's good he's dead! There's only room for one of us on a Burger King plastic cup!

See everybody in the sequel, next yeeeeee-aaarrrrr!

Dodo, you're heavily armed. You're surrounded by a bunch of useless hangers-on and bodyguards. You keep getting whacked by random violence. And your life revolves around gold jewelry. Do you know what this means?

Yes! I am Middle-Earth's first rap star!

In my travels, I've seen so few creatures like you!

Elves? Telepaths?

No, GIRLS! This story has 185 characters, and a big TWO of them are women!

Maybe three! The jury's still out on Legolamb!

17 arrows in four seconds, and every one of them hit the target! How do you explain that kind of shooting?

Hey, my bowstring broke in between arrows #12 and #13! I had to stop to fix it! It could've happened to anyone!

What kind of battle is this? There's 5,000 of us and eight of them!

Good point. We're doomed! Let's get the hell out of here!

Do not waste your final moments in vexation! Banish all dolor, or pangs of chagrin!

Vexation? Chagrin? I'm pissed off! Gandoof dies, but he's coming back! Everyone thought Sorehead died, but he came back! Dodo practically dies, TWICE, and he comes back twice! But ME? I'm dead, dead, DEAD! That's it! Get my friggin' agent on the cell phone!

Dodo, we did it! Well, um, actually, we didn't do anything! We got chased and stabbed and captured! But at least we made it to the end. Our challenge is over!

But this is only Part One, Spam! We have much deadlier enemies ahead of us! Harry Potter and Anakin Skywalker! And even if we make it past those two, up ahead are statues of Austin Powers, the Men in Black, the Scorpion King and Spider-Man! Next to those opponents, fighting the armies of Sorehead is going to be a breeze!

Forget TV Guide! Forget the weekly section in your Sunday newspaper! And forget that annoying grid that scrolls down your television screen faster than you can read it! If you really want to know what's on the boob tube, check out...

Consider if you will the high school theater production... Long after the music ends, the applause fades, the scenery comes down and the makeup comes off, all that remains are the memories... AND the amateurish theater programs that accompany them. Pity. Join us now for tonight's presentation...

MAD EXAMINES SELECTED PAGES IN A TYPICAL HIGH SCHOOL THEATER PROGRAM

Cover art drawn by the one kid who couldn't get a part.

Glaring spelling error that nobody catches until all the programs have been copied, collated, folded and stapled by hand.

Fears the day when one of his students makes it big and outs him in Oscar speech.

So at least some of it will be funny on purpose.

Accidentally scheduled for holiday weekend when parents and grandparents will be away.

Insists on having his name on everything.

Months of preparation for just three lousy performances.

She's doing this so she has something else to put on her résumé to convince colleges she's worth admitting.

He decided to audition because it wasn't enough being popular and well-liked through his sports accomplishments alone. Now, the slackers have a second reason to hate him.

She's the one person who can really dance well, whom all the other dancers will be compared to and considered lousy.

Thinks he's in the closet, though just about everyone in the cast knows.

She joined production in a misguided effort to get her parents in the same room for the first time in nine years.

He's perfectly cast as the stuffy, stuck-up adult he'll eventually become.

Joined cast just so he could hang around girl's dressing room and hopefully get a glimpse of backstage bare skin.

Joined cast to try and regain some self-esteem after crushing defeat in school government election.

He's one of those people who hangs out with high school kids years after he's graduated and is eventually arrested for buying a minor beer.

The moron who was peeking through the curtain and waving before the show started.

Responsible for the sound of crashing scenery coming from backstage during one of the solos.

Only previous acting "performance" was denying he wrote "Metallica Rules" on the Highway Five underpass.

Have you ever gone to a cemetery and gazed out over the hundreds of headstones and said to yourself: "Who are these people?" "How did they live their lives?" "How did they die?" No? Well, to be honest, neither have we. But that won't stop us from presenting...

THE MAD (DEAD) PEOPLE WATCHER'S GUIDE AT A TYPICAL CEMETERY

Went into hospital for hemorrhoids; caught 17 diseases while there — three of which killed him!

Still being hounded by Columbia Record Club for 1965 Sinatra LP he swore he never ordered!

Family bribed the coroner not to mention that he died while boinking his secretary!

Now knows for sure that the leftover potato salad in the fridge was "bad"!

Johnny Knoxville wannabe (with none of his coordination)!

Health nut who ate nothing but soy and vitamins for 20 years — dead at 43!

Lifelong Chicago Cubs and Boston Red Sox fans who committed suicide after Arizona Diamondbacks won World Series in only their fourth year of existence!

Had massive coronary upon learning that he finally won the grand prize in the lottery!

Only waited 58 minutes after eating before going into the pool!

Just wouldn't listen to mom about running with scissors!

From: Kenneth L. Lay, Ex-Chairman and Chief Executive
To: The American People

I am grateful for this opportunity to set matters straight regarding the collapse of Enron, the seventh largest corporation* in this great land of ours.

I have just completed a thorough review of our financial records. This was an extremely daunting task since we kept multiple sets of books.

My review was further complicated by the fact Enron operates offices in virtually every remote, off-shore country in the world — not to avoid paying our fair share of income taxes (as some misinformed members of the press have written) — but rather to lessen the burden on the Internal Revenue Service, who had their hands full processing the mountains of forms, schedules, addendums and attachments filed by devastated investors declaring unprecedented losses on our stock.

If I erred at all, it was in trusting our accounting firm, Arthur Andersen, Inc., to accurately maintain each of the aforementioned sets of books. It now appears that they may have employed some slightly questionable, unconventional and untested accounting practices. Sadly, we'll never know because all pertinent financial documents were shredded — not to destroy evidence that would send me and other Enron executives to prison (as some misinformed members of the press have written) — but rather, so thousands of our laid-off employees would have top-quality packing material to use when clearing out their offices for good. (At Enron, we never use those non-biodegradable Styrofoam peanuts that pollute the environment!)

I'm aware that in today's tough job market, many former Enron employees may have to relocate. In fact, I and many of Enron's top executives have already made plans to move to the Bahamas, Switzerland, Brazil and other countries without extradition treaties with the U.S.

My biggest regret is that many of our employees have suffered financial losses in their retirement accounts. It is true that we urged them to buy Enron stock, and after purchasing it we did not allow them to sell. I now realize this was a mistake. And so, effective immediately, all employees may sell their stock at fair market value, just like I and my fellow Enron executives did months ago when the stock was soaring! (As you can see, even though I'm no longer chairman, I worry about Enron's former employees every day. Specifically, I worry that a torch-wielding mob of them is going to show up at my estate and burn the place down.)

To those who say that I made millions of dollars from the sale of my Enron stock for personal gain and the acquisition of my Rolls-Royces, private jet, collection of oil paintings, Houston mansions and vacation villa in Jamaica, let me just say: This is not true! In fact, the Rolls-Royces, private jet, collection of oil paintings, Houston mansions and vacation villa in Jamaica were all paid for out of the company's executive petty cash fund, not my personal fortune (as some misinformed members of the press have written).

Enron's successes, which I'm still proud of, didn't come cheap. The expense of lobbying both Republican and Democratic politicians to deregulate the energy business was astronomical. Then, after granting our wish to conduct business in an environment totally free of any government involvement, these same politicians refused to bail us out with the billions we so desperately needed. Is it any wonder Enron couldn't prosper in such a hypocritical and hostile environment?

Sincerely,

Kenneth L. Lay

Every week, during the last minute of Saturday Night Live, the host, cast, musicians and their lackeys clamber up on stage and stand around hugging each other and waving. When you add up "1 minute" plus "1 minute" plus "1 minute" for 27 years of shows it totals about nine freakin' hours of TV with absolutely no content! Or does it? For the eagle-eyed fan, there is much to be gleaned from this seeming "garbage time," as we see in MAD's guide to...

THE FINAL MINUTE OF

Career musician, suddenly realizing the horrible truth that after a quarter of a century of national exposure, the second most successful SNL band member EVER was G.E. Smith.

Svornlun, a confused Austrian tourist who got lost weeks ago while taking the NBC tour.

Using show-end hugs as the perfect excuse to check out those rumors about the musical guest's rack.

This week's host, CLAIMING that it's been "a great show," and that the cast has been "so fantastic," while blinking in Morse Code like a Vietnam prisoner of war, "My...f'n...agent...is...so...fired..."

Impatient TV executive from Comedy Central, anxiously waiting for the contractual three hours to pass until they can grab the tape of this show and rerun it into oblivion with all the others.

Wisely using the 60 seconds of "dead time" in a productive fashion, by outlining the entire screenplay for the movie featuring his SNL character.

The cast member trying to act all blasé and nonchalant about their spot, while surreptitiously yet viciously elbowing any other cast member who merely THINKS about cutting off their camera angle.

SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE

The cast member who's always "still in costume" at 12:59, just to ensure that home viewers are sure to notice him as the pirate captain, or wearing the fruit-basket headgear, or inside the blinking robot chestplate.

Weeping Harvard professor, realizing that more people saw the animated Robert Smigel cartoon about Larry King and the horny armadillo than read all 17 of his books on Greek and Roman mythology combined.

Mob-connected Teamster, with the cushy lifetime job of cleaning Tina Fey's eyeglasses before the "Weekend Update" segment.

The B.C.M.P. (Black Cast Member Position), as pre-determined by intensive NBC research. Definitely up in front, but not RIGHT in front, but over to the side, but not TOO far off to the side.

Lorne Michaels, exuding a controlled sense of cool and inner quiet...like the studio audience, who just sat through a 90-minute show with two laughs.

The guy who works the button that turns on the "APPLAUSE" sign, getting an I.V. inserted directly into his raw, swollen finger, numbed from overuse.

APPLAUS

In recent years, the debate surrounding the legalization of marijuana for medicinal purposes has slowly risen to the forefront of social issues facing America today. Having been legalized in both Europe and Canada as the humane thing to do, we've been wondering just what the U. S. government is so afraid of. So, we assembled a team of crack prognosticators and asked them to closely examine the situation and determine exactly what would happen...

if medical marijuana was legalized

Ophthalmologists around the country would be overrun with patients claiming to have cataracts.

The Nobel Prize in Medicine would be shared by Cheech and Chong and Dr. Dre, for their many years of hard, unappreciated research. (Family members and fans of the late Bob Marley would be outraged at the slight.)

HMOs would reluctantly begin reimbursing 70% of the cost of all bongs and water pipes. (Black lights and Jerry Garcia posters would only be reimbursed at 50%, however.)

Tie-dyed hospital gowns would be all the rage.

Legions of college students would stage protests demanding that the Surgeon General declare "boredom" a disease — or at least a syndrome.

Rite Aid would enter into a bloody price war with the Mexican drug cartels.

The prescribing of low-grade schwag-weed would be grounds for a medical malpractice lawsuit.

Warning! Use of this product may cause side effects including: Uncontrollable Ding Dong cravings, inability to look at a cat without laughing for 20 minutes, repeated use of the words "trippy," "dank," "woah," and the phrase "I'm freakin' out, man," a tendency to lapse into a stupor while staring at your own fingernails, and more uncontrollable Ding Dong cravings.

The side effects posted on the label by the manufacturer would be the weirdest in FDA history.

Pot brownies would be considered "health food."

Willie Nelson would be added to the cast of ER.

I'm George Clooney, aka Dante Lotion, the leader of the greatest band of robbers and con men ever assembled for a film that should never have been remade! There are two plans here! The first is to pull the heist of the century and rob the vault of the Smellagio! That's a breeze! The second is looking like cooler cats than Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. We tank on that one! They were the Rat Pack! We're closer to the Blah Bunch! We're stiff, lifeless and devoid of personality! Meet the...

NO EN

That's Brad Pitt, aka Crusty Coolhand! He's hustled casinos worldwide! He's my right-hand man and the second coolest guy in this film! He likes to say he's Robin to my Batman, but I don't like to be reminded about that movie! Not my best work! More people got nauseous watching that film than The Perfect Storm! Including me! That's what we do here on this film...playful banter! Lots of tossed-off lines that sound ad-libby but are scripted, of course! Hey, you know a film's in trouble when Brad Pitt is the go-to comedy guy!

Meet Matt Damon, aka Listless Cartel, aka "The Kid"! His specialty: picking pockets! Why do we need a pickpocket to rob a Vegas vault? We don't! We wanted one more pretty boy for insurance! Not for the heist — for the box office! Let's face it, they might as well call this film The Invasion of the Damn Cute Guys!

Next comes Bernie Mac, aka Crank Brazen! He's the "inside man"! His job: he can deal cards and watch everything that takes place on the casino floor! So far all he's seen are hookers, fat tourists and a drunk lounge singer throwing up on a Keno waitress! Ah, there's nothing like the glamour and glitz of Las Vegas!

Next comes Eddie Jemison, aka Livingston Dull, aka "The Geek"! Livingston is the nervous surveillance expert! He's a specialist in electronics, computers and wiring! His job is A) to help pull off the heist and B) afterwards, to hook everybody in the group up with illegal cable!

Torres

MOTIONS ELEVEN

That's Don Cheadle, aka Trashar Barr! He's our demolitions expert! TNT, plastiques, wireless exploding devices are his specialty! He can blow up anything! If I were him, my first job would be to attach a pipe bomb to the acting coach who taught him the cockamamie cockney accent he uses throughout this film! I warn you, you're not going to understand one word he says! Hell, I don't either!

Over there is Elliot Gould, aka Ruby Mishigoss! There goes our hip factor! Elliot plays the film's money man! He bankrolls our operation! This heist is dangerous, but he likes the action! Hell, he's used to long shots! He was once married to Barbra Streisand! Yeesh! Talk about bad odds!

That other old geezer is Carl Reiner, aka Sol Gloom! Early in his career Carl worked with Sid Caesar, Mel Brooks, Neil Simon and Larry Gelbart, the funniest group ever assembled! They had him laughing all the time! Carl says hanging around with this group is a nice change!

I now bow to Shaobo Qui, aka "The Amazing Yawn," an acrobat who can fit into small spaces! During the heist he folds his body in half and gets into the tiniest places! Incidentally, there is also a huge hole I can dive into! It's called the plot! There's enough room there for me, Yawn and every voter whose ballot wasn't counted in Florida!

These next two are Scott Caan and Casey "Yes, Ben's my brother" Affleck! They're the zany truck and car guys, Turk and Virgil Malloy! In this film they basically drive cars around and argue! Let's listen in...

No, we don't argue a lot!

Yes, we do!

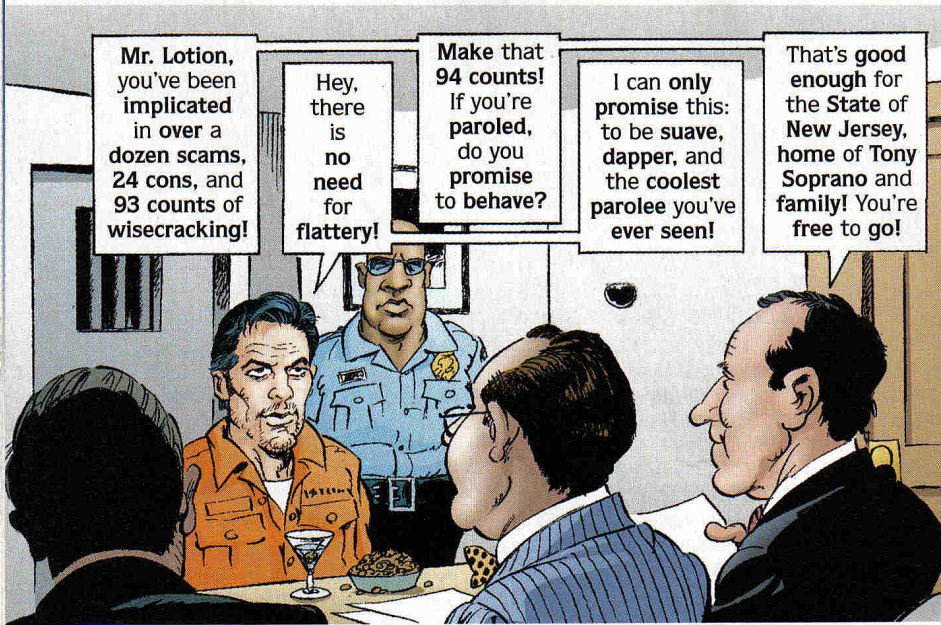

No, we don't!

Are you laughing yet?

Later on you'll meet Andy Garcia, aka Testy Benedrill! He's the second most powerful man in Vegas after Siegfried and Roy! He's also dating Julia Roberts, aka my former wife, Tush! Julia's the fifth prettiest person in the film. Thank goodness Gould and Reiner aren't hunks or I think she would have bolted this movie completely!

I never thought I'd be in a time travel caper!

This is not a time travel caper!

Really? From your outfit I'd say we were in 1973!

First task: Deception! Sol, you'll pose as Zorba Flummer, a mysterious Euro-aristocratic high roller! Can you do the accent?

Let me put it this way, they didn't cast me in this film to drive monster trucks!

As "intelligence" provider my job was to shadow Benedrill! I did! Here's the skinny on him: He's ruthless, he's arrogant, he's a neat freak! He knows everything that goes on at his hotels! Everything! There he is now! Give a listen!

A man is skimming on table nine, there's a dirty coaster on Blackjack table 12, and at the lunch buffet a bagel is smooshed!

He's good! He's ruthless, but he's good!

Dante, what are you doing in Vegas? You're breaking parole! Shouldn't you be in New Jersey?

Let's be honest, nobody should be in New Jersey! Besides, I just wanted to say hello to my wife!

EX-wife!

I see you're dating that creep, Testy Benedrill!

Yes! I seem to be drawn to handsome, shallow men!

So how come we got a divorce?

Remember? Two great looking people with strong egos? It was a constant battle over the mirror! You couldn't even share it with me!

With your lips, there wasn't room for the two of us at the same time!

There goes the old Mowgreenio!

You're a cruel, brutal man, Testy Benedrill!

Why? Lots of people demolish old hotels!

Not when there's still a housekeeping staff inside!

There was also a lounge singer inside!

Good call!

I'm Zorba Flummer! I'll need a secure place to store a shipment of emeralds I'm expecting! Like your vault!

Mr. Flummer, I'm trying to place your accent!

It's not easy, Mr. Benedrill! It's a deceptive dialect! I could be Scottish, Peruvian, or a wealthy Kurd!

I'm thinking The Bronx, Mosholu Parkway area, went to Dewitt Clinton High School, finally retired to Florida!

He's good! He's ruthless, but he's good!

I KNOW HIM...

2000 YEARS OLD

It's showtime! We all have our assignments! At 7:15, Yawn folds himself into the cart! During the fight, Trashar blows the electricity on the strip! We have exactly 30 minutes to blow the power or Yawn suffocates!

We're playing it kinda tight! Do we have a backup plan?

Well, if we run a little late, I'll try to save Yawn with stuff I remember from ER!

Oh God! You call this a fight scene?

No, a schtick scene! If the audience wants a fight scene they'll go see Ali playing next door!

Yawn has four seconds of air left! Hit it! Blow the lights!

I hope Vegas doesn't have a giant surge suppressor!

What the hell happened? Vegas went dark!

This better be a new trick by David Copperfield!

Hello, I'm a "lady of the pitch black evening"! Wanna have sex? A thousand dollars!

Wow! That's pretty steep! I'm gorgeous!

You are? For the next ten seconds I am!

No more cards for me, dealer! I'll stand on 21!

But you don't have 21! Now I do!

Welcome to our showroom! When the lights come back up on stage, you'll see the two biggest stars in all of Vegas!

You mean Steve and Eydie? Nope! Britney Spears!

Yawn did it! He somersaulted backwards out of the cash cart, over the alarmed floor and onto the ledge! Amazing!

If you think THAT was an incredible leap, wait till you see how the rest of the story develops!

Hello, Mr. Benedrill! If you watch the video feed, you'll see we are robbing you!

Congratulations! You're a dead man!

What should we do, boss?

Send a Swat team into the lobby! Follow their van to the airport! Unleash the Siegfried & Roy attack animals! Show no mercy!

It's all gone! Where'd my money go? I'm confused!

You're not alone, Mr. Benedrill! Everyone's confused! You, the audience and the heist team! Let me try to clear up the confusion — if that's possible!

It was all staged! Everything! It was all a fake! We rigged the video remotes! You thought you were watching the vault! It was a fake vault!

The Swat team was fake! They were our guys posing as a Swat team!

That airport van you were following was driverless! It was steered by remote control!

And the act on your showroom stage was not Wayne Newton! It was one of our crew dressed as Wayne Newton!

They blew up the bags, Mr. Benedrill, but no money! The bags were filled with fliers for hookers!

Get rid of those things!

You may be needing them! Your girlfriend just left you!

Well, guys, we pulled off the perfect crime!

Scooby dooby doo! That was ringa-ding-dull!

When this flick hits the screen without us in each scene — it's a bore-ay!

Ain't that a kick in the head?

They call this a perfect crime? No way!

Sure was! A perfect crime on the ticket paying audience!

WHAT OGRE IS DESTINED TO

PRESENCE THIS OSCAR NIGHT?

HERE WE GO WITH ANOTHER RIDICULOUS MAD FOLD-IN

Every March the movie industry gives out little gold statuettes (better known as Oscars) to the crème de la crème of the film industry. All of the Hollywood elite come out for this big event. This year, however, potential winners may stay away, cowed by an odious and animated creature only a mom could love. To find out who this ogre is, fold page in as shown.
